

Why choose a metal roof?

Not only does it add value to your home, a metal roof actually saves you money on roofing maintenance costs, and on your energy bills.

Regular asphalt shingle roofs need re-roofing (plus interim maintenance and shingle replacement) anywhere from 5 to 15 years. But a virtually maintenance free metal roof on your home means you will likely never re-roof again or have to worry about damage, leaks or missing shingles.

For saving money, metal roofing is second to none. In fact, having one on your home can actually lower your heating and air conditioning bills year round. In the summer, metal's scientifically tested reflective coatings keep your home cooler with less energy in the winter its insulating properties keep heat in, saving you energy, and money.

When choosing a metal roof there are two main types of metal roof panels. One is an exposed fastener metal roof and the other is a concealed fastener standing seam metal roof. For structures with solid wood or metal decks it is important to use a standing seam roof system with concealed fasteners. The concealed fasteners and clips allow the roof panels to expand and contract when heated by the sun. Exposed screw down roof systems are designed to be used for steel metal buildings that have steel purlins. The purlins allow for the expansion and contraction of the panels by the purlins bending back and forth together. It is not recommended to put exposed fastener screw down roofs onto wood or metal solid decks, such as on a house.

There are a variety of metal shingle and metal shake and tile systems that look just like shingle roofs that are great products and make even a trained eye question if they are metal. The great thing about these systems is they give the homeowner all the benefits of metal but with the "look" they are after.

That's exactly what you get with a long lasting, durable metal roof that stays looking distinguished and attractive for decades. They offer superior hurricane protection.

And don't forget your investment is protected. There are available manufacturer warranties for 30 years, as well as workmanship warranties from your contractor.

This is why we call it "investment grade" metal roofing. Because it pays you long term in dividends and also in time, money and value.

Let us enhance the beauty & durability of your home with a metal roof.
